Davis Cup Team Has Scored Glittering List Triumph Over Strong Opponents

PLAY IS IMPROVING

Belgium, Spain And South Africa Have Fallen Before Stalwart British Experts

In spite of the criticism that has been leveled at British tennis players, the players of the British team have made a strong showing in the Davis cup matches of 1924 to date. They have not beaten, except in South Africa, in order to have come through to the semi-finals of the tournament. The British team has won the Davis cup for the first time in its history. The British team has won the Davis cup for the first time in its history. The British team has won the Davis cup for the first time in its history.

Haymond, winner of the Olympic title in 1920 and a semifinalist at Wimbledon this year, and P. D. R. French, who defeated Haymond at Wimbledon in 1923, seemed almost too strong for the English. But Wheatley and Gilbert surprised by their first three sets, and won the fourth by a score of four matches to one. Haymond was unable to play a second singles match as he turned his ankle and had to retire in favor of a younger member of the team. Haymond would have won the series, however, even had he been able to play and his match with Wheatley would have been won in three sets.

Wheatley is strong. While it is not expected that the British will be able to get past the French in the light of the performance of the French team, it is expected to date show that there has been considerable improvement in the play of the British players. The French team of the previous year, which was defeated by the British, was a very strong team. The French team of the previous year, which was defeated by the British, was a very strong team.

W. P. K. Kington, who won the Wimbledon title for his country in 1919, was the only British player who was selected to play on the team that was defeated by the French. The British team was defeated by the French in the final of the Davis cup. The British team was defeated by the French in the final of the Davis cup.

PETE DONAHUE

In the New York-Cincinnati game yesterday Manager Jack Hendrick put Pete Donahue into the box to see if the young left-hander could handle the Giants—wrong. No pitcher on earth could have stopped the McGraw bunch yesterday if they went on a batting spree in the second inning that continued throughout the rest of the frames.

McGraw was easily solved by Washington in the second.

Breeders and Concoquest of British Bacon Market by Grading Hogs

EXPORT HOGS TO BE GRADED

Agricultural Committee Say That Grading Necessary To Sell on English Market

MAINTAIN QUALITY Products Should Be Stamped In Order To Distinguish Canadian Bacon

W. J. Elliot who made the Swedish awards at the Edmonton Exhibition, explained in a recent interview the necessity of Canada producing a uniform grade hog if she expects to satisfy the requirements of the various export markets especially the market of Great Britain. Mr. Elliot stated that his choice of a hog that came close to representing the type of animal that would establish Canadian bacon on the English market as a standard quality, would be found in the 'Large Blacks' a breed of hog that has been bred by a few breeders in the Edmonton district.

He emphasized the necessity of hog grading throughout Canada. The following dispatch from Toronto indicates that agricultural men are trying to secure an effective hog grading system that will establish the quality of Canadian bacon on the English market and distinguish it from other bacon products.

TORONTO, July 22.—The hog grading campaign in Canada is considered by the agricultural community of the province to be the central factor in any campaign of British markets by Canadian bacon. In a report from Toronto, published principally the report finds that the Canadian hog conference, which was held in the British market, has been successful in convincing the latter United States corporation and also the recent, one-man-for-hog-grading instituted by the agricultural department in the United States, that the Canadian hog is better than the American hog.

It is believed that cures should stamp their product from higher grade hogs with Canadian mark, in order that the British public might become familiar with the name. At the present time, Canadian hogs are only genuine Canadian products, but also the United States product, which Canadian hogs are better than the American hog.
